

2023 MSK Pulmo-Oncology Symposium

JUNE 9, 2023 • VIRTUAL

In this Symposium, expert faculty from various disciplines will discuss select topics relevant to the care of cancer patients with pulmonary comorbidities and pulmonary complications of cancer therapies.

Memorial Sloan Kettering
Cancer Center

Overview

Pulmo-Oncology is an emerging discipline that has great importance to the clinical care of cancer patients. The respiratory system is often impacted by direct cancer involvement, infections, and toxicities stemming from the use of anti-neoplastic agents. Pre-existing pulmonary disorders affect patient outcomes and management decisions. Effective clinical management of pulmonary complications of cancer and its therapies requires an interdisciplinary approach.

In this inaugural Symposium, clinical experts from Memorial Sloan Kettering (MSK) and other institutions will present an up-to-date overview of cutting-edge cancer therapies and best practice strategies in the evaluation and management of lung disease.

The purpose of this Symposium is to provide a state-of-the-art, case-based, multidisciplinary curriculum that addresses selected topics relevant to the respiratory health of patients with cancer.

Who Should Attend

This Symposium is designed for healthcare professionals in pulmonology, hematology and oncology, and other disciplines involved in the care of cancer patients or who have a special interest in this area.

Educational Objectives

- Explain the role of pulmonologist in diagnosis and management of lung cancer
- Identify state of the art treatment strategies for management of lung cancer and check point inhibitor pneumonitis
- Implement strategies for diagnosis and management of infectious and non infectious complications of stem cell transplant
- Implement approaches to symptom management of cough and malignant pleural effusion
- Explain clinical significance of interstitial lung abnormalities and pulmonary fibrosis in lung cancer management

Virtual Format

This program will be delivered on Zoom. Access details, including the link to Zoom, will be emailed to registrants prior to the start of the Symposium.

Online Syllabus

Registered attendees will receive access to an online syllabus after the Symposium, which includes select PDFs of the faculty presentations (slides) and recorded videos from the course.
